

ABSTRACT

"A key management system and method"

- 5 Keys for encryption are stored by a key server software database file system. There is separate and individual security for each key with per-key encryption. An alias makes a request to create a key, and the server requests an accelerator to generate the key, and subsequently receives it and stores it in a database.

2025 RELEASE UNDER E.O. 14176